HE'S A REBEL FROM WAY BACK

"Bumsky" Says They Treated Copperheads Like Freshmen.

"They treated us Copperheads about like they used to treat the freshmen here in the University," reminisced "Bumsky," the 76-year-old youth who keeps the water lot at the Y. M. C. A. and chums with the boys who are sixty years his junior. "You see where I lived in Galena, Ill., began 'Bumsky,' whose real name is Gustav Eilken, 'nearly all the people were Republicans and Black Abolitionists and we Southern sympathizers were not tenderly regarded. The other school and my sister both wore the copper cent children used to pounce me and 'rough me' in a not very gentle manner. I until it was made an offense by law."

"I was nursed by a black woman who was one of eighty-four blacks owned by my grandfather," he said. He still waxed eloquent on the subject of the atrocities of the Union soldiers towards some of his people and can cite some rather gruesome instances of treatment of his relatives and friends. His grandmother and aunt, the latter with a few-week-old baby, were expelled from their home near Kansas City by the soldiers working under Order No. 11. The soldiers forced the women to cook their supper and then drove them away and destroyed the house and property. The baby died of exposure and both the women were seriously ill owing to the winter weather. "You bet I'm a Southern sympathizer," repeats "Bumsky," "doggone it, you bet I am."
